

Advanced First Aid Techniques Offshore

Duration	1 Day
Target group	This course is designed for established First Aiders to achieve competence in advanced principles and techniques of Airway and Fluids management, and is suitable for personnel holding an HSE approved Offshore First Aid certificate who require training to be able to provide advanced assistance to the Rig Medic.
Prerequisites	Delegates must hold a valid Offshore First Aid certificate (HSE Approved) to undertake the training programme.
Objective	The course consists of a combination of theoretical and practical elements on completion of which delegates will be able to demonstrate knowledge, understanding and competence in advanced airway and fluids management. Delegates will be assessed by qualified assessors on understanding and competence of each module undertaken during the training programme.
Contents	Course delegates will complete theoretical and practical training and develop knowledge and skills in - Causes of interruption to fluid balance - Situations requiring fluid replacement - Preparation of fluid replacement apparatus - Management of fluid replacement - Preparation of Advanced airway management equipment - Advanced Airway Management - Measuring and recording of vital signs
Exam	Successful delegates will be issued with a course completion certificate.